A JOURNEY INTO THE HEART OF THE EARTH WHERE AMAZEMENT AND HISTORY AWAIT

“

The Gouffre de Padirac has been open to the public for almost a century and a half.

All thanks to the curiosity of one man and the vision and the temerity of his comrades.

In 1889, accompanied by a handful of explorers, Edouard-Alfred Martel used a rope to descend into the Puits de Padirac. At the bottom of this telescopic chasm with just a single piece of blue sky on its horizon, the brave explorer fell in love with this outstanding work of nature. From that point on, it became his mission to share his discovery with as many people as possible.

A chance meeting with my ancestor—the visionary Irish entrepreneur George Beamish—made this dream a reality and led to the founding of the company Puits de Padirac.

For the last 25 years, with the help of a team of passionate professionals, I have dedicated my career to preserving this exceptional natural monument and perpetuating a tradition of hospitality at this icon of French tourism.

Today, the adventure awaiting at the Gouffre de Padirac captures the hearts of more than 530,000 visitors every year. Its popularity has continued to grow ever since it first opened to the public in 1898.

103 metres beneath the ground, the Gouffre de Padirac is a quintessential example of the treasures of the underground world, and home not only to a monumental well but also to a cave filled with jaw-dropping concretions, a river hidden in the belly of the Earth, and a lake floating beneath a majestic high-ceilinged vault...

Embark on journey of indescribable beauty that will leave you forever changed! Legend says the Devil had his part to play in creating this cave, but, when seen up close, it becomes clear this could only be the work of Heaven!

THE GOUFFRE DE PADIRAC, A QUINTESSENTIAL TREASURE OF THE UNDERGROUND WORLD

A NATURAL CAVE OF JAW-DROPPING DIMENSIONS

The adventure begins with a 75 meters descent into a luscious natural chasm 33 meters in diameter, either via the 207 Eiffel-inspired steps or via the panoramic lift, before then continuing deeper into the galleries 103 meters beneath the ground. This is the start of your odyssey into the belly of the Earth.

42 KM OF GALLERIES, 1 KM OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

The Gouffre de Padirac's geological mysteries and weaving galleries have always fascinated speleologists. Along several hundred metres of foot and boat paths, through majestic and mysterious landscapes, visitors explore part of the 42 kilometers of rocky galleries that have been sculpted and polished by millennia of erosion.

A SPELLBINDING RIVER

Follow the gentle directions of our boat guides who will help your boat and prepare for a journey along the peaceful Rivière Plane. Sail along the translucent waters between thousand-year-old walls hollowed out through the ages. Here, all that disturbs the silence of the depths are the sounds of the small drops of water trickling down the walls of the Grande Pendeloque before disappearing into the Lac de la Pluie. A truly sublime experience!

DELVE INTO THE HEART OF GEOLOGICAL HISTORY

Return to the Quarternary Period, when rainwater infiltrations formed cracks in the immense limestone plateau of the Causses du Quercy. Chemical and mechanical erosion then led to the continual formation of galleries and geomorphological structures resembling limestone flowers, alabaster stoups, stacks of plates, fabric, lace, and stalagmites and stalactites, such as the 75 meters long Grande Colonne.

AN ICONIC STALAGMITE

La Pile d'Assiettes is an icon of the Gouffre de Padirac. It was formed by drops of water flattening the rock dozens of metres below and causing them to release limestone several centimetres around the point of impact. A mass of calcite crystals, La Pile d'Assiettes is a karstic wonder formed over several centuries.

EXPLORING THE GOUFFRE DE PADIRAC

Exploration of the Gouffre de Padirac begins by descending either via the lifts or via the 207 steps. At a depth of 103 meters, the visit continues into the Galerie de la Source, whose rocky walls have been polished by centuries of erosion.

A few hundred metres further, visitors arrive at the boarding quay, where they will be welcomed by our passionate boat guides. From there, glide along the River Plane for over 500 metres, before arriving at the impressive Lac de la Pluie, home to the Grande Pendeloque, a majestic stalactite 60 meters high.

After disembarking in a rocky cavern, the adventure continues into the Gouffre's most beautiful chambers. Following a narrow passage along the Grande Colonne, a monumental calcite structure 75 meters high, the tour then arrives at the Lac des Gours. Here, the calcite has created beautifully twisting dams and stunning reflective pools.

After climbing a hundred steps, finally visitors arrive at the Salle du Grand Dôme, an underground cathedral 94 meters high calmly presided over by the famous Pile d'Assiettes, an unshakable witness to the passing of time that seems almost to have been placed purposefully on top of the Lac Supérieur. This is the last stage in this breath-taking journey.

ÉDOUARD-ALFRED MARTEL, BENEFACTOR OF HUMANITY

A major geological curiosity, the Gouffre de Padirac was first explored in 1889 by Edouard-Alfred Martel. The founding father of modern speleology and a pioneer of underground exploration and conservation, Martel's discoveries and work led him to earn the well-deserved title of “Benefactor of Humanity”.

On 9 July 1889, Martel and his team journeyed to the centre of the Earth using a 75 m cable and equipped only with candles, hemp ropes and rope ladders. No sooner had their feet touched the ground, however, the adventure was brought to a halt just a dozen steps later, obstructed by the rising water levels in what would come to be known as the Rivière Plane. The team was forced to turn back for the first time and leave the Devil's Hole. The next day at dawn, unwilling to abandon the adventure so hastily, Martel descended once again, this time equipped with a magnesium lamp and a small boat, and was able to discover the breathtaking wonders of the rocky caves...

1889

Overwhelmed by the beauty of the exceptional natural setting, he immediately knew that his discovery had to be shared with the whole world... This ambition was soon made possible by a chance encounter, when George Beamish, an Irishman from a large family of brewers, came across documents left by Martel in the back of a hackney cab describing details of his plans to develop the Padirac Cave. Fascinated by the discovery, he immediately got in contact with the explorer. Together, in 1899, they founded the Société du Puits de Padirac, with the aim of “developing access to and tours of the Puits de Padirac caves, chasm and river”.

1898

Sadly, Beamish would never see his dream come to life and he passed away before the site opened. It was his son William Beamish who contributed to the rise and touristic development of the Gouffre de Padirac. This intergenerational commitment continues today, with the baton passing in 2005 to his great granddaughter Laetitia de Ménibus-Gravier, the fifth generation to helm the company. Her arrival marked a turning point in the cave's history with her determination to restore the image and appeal of this geological wonder.

A PIONEERING COMPANY AND BEACON OF FRENCH TOURISM

For more than 130 years, the Société d'Exploitation du Gouffre de Padirac has worked to promote, develop and preserve this exceptional site. The incredible adventure is detailed in Tristan Gaston-Breton's book Les Secrets du Gouffre de Padirac published by Albin Michel in June 2024.

Pioneering underground tourism, the company immediately stood out for its innovative spirit, notably reflected in the installation of avant-garde infrastructure, including electricity in 1901, the use of reinforced concrete for the underground passages in the 1920s, and the installation of the Gouffre's first lift in 1930.

Having survived two world wars, the business once again began to struggle in the 1970s. It was only in 2005, with the arrival Laetitia de Ménibus-Gravier at the helm, that the Gouffre de Padirac was able once again to prosper. Under Laëtitia de Ménibus-Gravier's impetus, the business was completely restructured and the site restored to its former glory.

It was now a site dedicated to knowledge and discovery, combining a thirst for culture and exploration. Ever since, visitor numbers to the Gouffre de Padirac have continued to rise and the site has become France's top landmark for underground natural heritage. This popularity also results in part from its eclectic cultural programme that includes exhibitions, concerts and immersive events designed around bold, innovative experiences.

And that's just the beginning! Work will soon begin on an ambitious project to renovate and extend the site's existing visitor infrastructure under the guidance of a world-renowned architect.

THE GOUFFRE DE PADIRAC, A KEY CONTRIBUTOR TO THE REGION'S ECONOMY

The Gouffre de Padirac's appeal is reflected in its economic impact on the region, both in terms of revenue and employment.

In 20 years, visitor numbers have increased by almost 60%, composed primarily of French visitors, as well as visitors from abroad. This popularity benefits the entire region. More than 60% of visitors come to the region primarily to see the Gouffre de Padirac, and for every euro spent at the Gouffre, three more euros are spent locally (source: 2017 Protourisme Survey).

Additionally, every year, the Gouffre de Padirac creates 304 direct, indirect and induced jobs, with 150 staff employed directly by the Société d'Exploitation du Gouffre (49 full-time equivalent). The same trend can be seen regionally, with every full-time job created at the Gouffre de Padirac generating six equivalent full-time jobs in the region.

This economic impact can be explained in large part by the increase in activity in other tourism sectors: 22% of visitors choose to stay in a hotel, versus 19% in campsites, mainly during the peak season, with an average stay lasting 6.5 nights. The phenomenon of the Gouffre de Padirac is impressive at every level!

The image shows the interior of the Gouffre de Padirac, a large cave system. In the foreground, there is a large, calm pool of water with a vibrant green hue. The water reflects the lights and the surrounding rock formations. To the left, a metal walkway with railings extends over the water. The cave walls are composed of rugged, layered rock, with some areas showing stalactites and other geological features. The lighting is a mix of warm yellow and cool blue-green, creating a dramatic atmosphere. The text "THE GOUFFRE DE PADIRAC, MUCH MORE THAN A TOURIST LANDMARK" is overlaid on the right side of the image in a bold, white, sans-serif font.

OUTREACH WORKSHOPS TO COMPLEMENT YOUR VISIT

Since 2017, our scientific and cultural outreach team has offered fun and educational workshops inviting kids and teenagers to take on the role of a curious scientist. The workshop “Caves, chasms and abysses, where chemistry meets geology” gives participants the chance to become apprentice chemists, discovering the processes that led to the creation of these caves. A second workshop, “Formation of the Gouffre de Padirac’s karstic network”, uses educational material to recreate the geological events that sculpted this incredible site and facilitate an empirical understanding of its evolution over the millennia. To complement the school curriculum, teachers and students can also draw on a series of fun worksheets organized into five areas of learning suitable for every level.

THE PADIRACOTHEQUE’S OPEN SOURCE ARCHIVES

To share the history of this extraordinary site, the Société d’Exploitation du Gouffre has designed a special online platform home to more than 130 years of records. Their specialized internal training enables them to share geological and historic knowledge of the site as they take visitors on a journey along the river 103 metres below the ground. These ambassadors of the Gouffre also offer themed tours (VIP tours, explorer evenings) and take part in unique immersive shows --- truly timeless one-off experiences.

SUPPORTING LOCAL LIFE AND FRENCH PRODUCTION

Reflecting our commitment to authenticity and local community, the Gouffre de Padirac gives the French terroir pride of place in its catering options and stores. The Auberge du Gouffre restaurant promotes regional flavours, local ingredients and home-made cuisine, and the Kiosque delicatessen offers a refined selection of artisanal products enriched by partnerships with a local beekeeper and wine-maker. The souvenirs shop also offers creations designed and made in France, guaranteeing both quality and tradition.

COMMUNITY COMMITMENTS

Conscious of the human and social challenges faced by all members of the community today, the Gouffre de Padirac actively supports several associations working to safeguard health and foster inclusion, including Vaincre la Maladie des Os de Verre, Partage Handicap 09 and Mécénat Chirurgie Cardiaque. This support reflects the values of solidarity and responsibility that underpin the business and which are shared by our teams, who regularly take part in actions.

SPONSORSHIP THAT ENCOURAGES THE SPIRIT OF ADVENTURE

Since 2020, the Gouffre de Padirac has supported skipper Maxime Sorel and the association Vaincre la Mucoviscidose, which provides support to patients and families affected by cystic fibrosis. This sponsorship helps promote the pioneering mindset of courage, exploration and determination. From the depths of the Earth to the vast immensity of the oceans and the summits of the highest peaks, the same spirit of adventure drives all those who continually push the boundaries of what is possible. Inspiration that the Société d'Exploitation hopes to share with its teams and visitors.

A UNIQUE NATURAL SITE THAT DEMANDS PRESERVATION

A FASCINATING AND ESSENTIAL WATER CYCLE

Water is locked in an endless cycle. It shapes both visible and invisible landscapes.

This cycle begins with evaporation from the seas and oceans. Cooled by the atmosphere, it then condenses, forming clouds that fall onto the ground as rain. Part of this water flows into rivers and another seeps into cracks in the ground feeding underground reservoirs. From here, over thousands of years, these slow streams sculpt underground galleries like the Gouffre de Padirac. Here, 103 metres beneath the earth, water continues its journey for 20 km before emerging at the Fontaine Saint-Georges karstic spring, followed by Dordogne and finally the Atlantic Ocean. A natural illustration of the water cycle close enough to touch!

A REFUGE OF BIODIVERSITY

The Gouffre de Padirac is also home to a host of wildlife. More than eight species of bat, three of which are endangered, have chosen the cave as their home. But it is in the underground river that the most surprising fauna are found, including the Niphargus, a small, white, blind, cave-dwelling prawn, and the Bythinelle de Padirac, a 3 mm freshwater snail endemic to the Gouffre de Padirac. Preserving this biodiversity is a key concern for the teams at the site.

PRESERVING THE NATURAL EQUILIBRIUM FOR FUTURE GENERATIONS

Situated in the heart of the Lot region of France, the Gouffre de Padirac is a unique natural setting. In this rural landscape, the fields surrounding the site are primarily dedicated to agriculture.

It is vital that the site's exceptional character continues to be preserved for future generations. To this end, the Société d'Exploitation has implemented a number of protective measures. The rock walls are carefully monitored by specialized partners (design offices and geologists). A water-quality assessment protocol is also in place, with samples collected on a regular basis.

Additionally, we ensure that all products used on site are completely neutral for the environment.

The Gouffre de Padirac Société d'Exploitation remains vigilant and takes care to ensure that only speleological expeditions for scientific purposes are permitted at the site.

This proactive management represents a major investment and is essential to ensuring the future and preservation of this unique location.
